Features

5 Next Door, But Far Apart by Eric Damer

One might think that neighbouring Burnaby and New West would share similar cultural traditions, but a closer look into their spring festivals reveals different local histories.

12 Who Were These Two Mowachaht Men? by Jim McDowell

Jim McDowell argues that for more than 200 years an iconic 18th-century image about Nootka Sound history has been interpreted incorrectly.

16 The Beginnings of Interpretation in BC's Parks by Bill Merilees

Bill Merilees chronicles the start of nature interpretation in BC's Provincial Parks based on his own work experience, research, and interviews with colleagues.

23 Ken Wright, Coach, Teacher, Champion by Vern Giesbrecht

In part two on British Columbia basketball legend Ken Wright, author Vern Giesbrecht explores Wright's coaching and provincial championships.

28 Discarded and Recovered: Dr. E.C. Arthur Fonds by R.J. (Ron) Welwood

Relatives unwittingly dumped crates of memorabilia. Fortunately, scavengers unearthed some of this trove that revealed snippets of information about a Nelson pioneer.

Regulars

40 Archives & Archivists

by Robb Gilbert; edited by Sylvia Stopforth

The Wade Family fonds at the Kamloops Museum & Archives' Mary Balf Archives document the life & writings of Mark S. Wade — doctor, biographer, politician, & historian.

48 Cabinets of Curiosities

by Carol Annett

The story of how a 19th century Montanan made side-saddle riding skirt journeyed to the RBCM in Victoria in the 21st century.

Unfastened, Jennie's riding skirt is longer on one side to cover her legs while mounted side-saddle. The inside of the hem is reinforced with a strip of leather. Read story on page 48.
